

Reformed Theology – Class 5

THE ORDO SALUTIS

For those whom he foreknew he also predestined to be conformed to the image of his Son, in order that he might be the firstborn among many brothers. And those whom he predestined he also called, and those whom he called he also justified, and those whom he justified he also glorified.
Romans 8:29-30

EFFECTUAL CALLING OR REGENERATION

All whom God has chosen He, in His appointed time, calls by the Word and the Holy Spirit out of sin and death to salvation in Christ. He regenerates His people by enlightening their minds to understand the things of God, replacing their hard hearts with new ones, and renewing their wills. The person who is made alive by this call must and will act according to his new nature. He is now able and desires to embrace salvation as it is offered to him. (Titus 1:15; Jn. 3:1-8; 6:44; Acts 16:14; Rom. 8:29,30; I Cor. 2:14; II Cor. 4:4).

CONVERSION

1. Regeneration is inseparable from its effects, faith and repentance.
2. Saving faith ordinarily comes through the ministry of the Word.
 - Romans 10:14-17
 - I Cor. 1:18-21
 - I Cor. 2:1-4
3. Saving faith involves knowledge, assent, and trust.

Heresy of the Assent view

- Matthew 7:21
Matthew 8:29 and James 2:19
- John 6:64-66
- Acts 16:31 - "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" Paul and Silas answered "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and you shall be saved, you and your household."

REPENTANCE (Psalm 51 & Acts 2:38)

There is no sin so great that it can bring damnation upon the truly repentant.

- There is forgiveness for David's sins of adultery, dishonesty, and murder (II Samuel 12:13).
- There is forgiveness for the "many" sins of the woman who washed Jesus' feet with her hair (Luke 7:47,48).
- There is forgiveness for Simon Peter's triple denial with profanity (John 21:15-17).
- There is forgiveness for Paul's merciless pre-conversion persecution of Christians (Philippians 3:6,8,9).

We should not be content with a general repentance of our sins, but it is our duty to repent and confess to God our individual sins.

- Prov. 28:13; Ps. 32:1, 5; and I Jn. 1:9 - Confessing our sins to God.
- Lk. 17:3; Jam. 5:16; and Mt. 18:15

The person who understands the evil in his own heart is the only person who is useful, fruitful, and solid in his beliefs and obedience. Others only delude themselves and thus upset families, churches, and all other relationships. In their self-pride and judgment of others, they show great inconsistency. John Owen

JUSTIFICATION

1. Grace

Justification is an act of God's free grace, where He pardons our sins and accepts us as righteous, not because of any merit of our own, but only by virtue of Christ's righteousness imputed to us and received by faith alone (Romans 1:16,17; 3:21,22; 4:5; 5:18).

2. Instantaneous

Justification is not a process, it doesn't take time.

3. How are you right with God? From the Heidelberg Catechism

Only by true faith in Jesus Christ. Even though my conscience accuses me of having grievously sinned against all God's commandments and of never having kept any of them, and even though I am still inclined toward all evil, nevertheless, without my deserving it at all, out of sheer grace, God grants and credits to me the perfect satisfaction, righteousness, and holiness of Christ, as if I had never sinned, nor been a sinner, as if I had been perfectly obedient as Christ was obedient for me. All I need to do is accept this gift of God with a believing heart.

ADOPTION

Our understanding of Christianity cannot be better than our grasp of adoption.

"You sum up the whole of New Testament teaching in a single phrase, if you speak of it as a revelation of the Fatherhood of the holy Creator... ..If you want to judge how well a person understands Christianity, find out how much he makes of the thought of being God's child, and having God as his Father. If this is not the thought that prompts and controls his worship and prayers and his whole outlook on life, it means that he does not understand Christianity very well at all. For everything that Christ taught, everything that makes the New Testament new, and better than the Old, everything that is distinctly Christian as opposed to merely Jewish, is summed up in the knowledge of the Fatherhood of God. 'Father' is the Christian name for God." J.I. Packer, Evangelical Magazine, 7, p. 19.

Privilege

Adoption is the highest privilege the gospel offers. Justification is a forensic idea, conceived in terms of law with God as the judge.

- Jn.1:12; I Jn. 3:1, 2; Gal. 4:4 - Those that believe in Christ become the sons of God.
- Jn. 8:44; Eph. 2:3; I Jn. 3:10 - Indicate that we are by nature children of the devil.
- Rom. 8:16, 17; Gal. 4:6, 7 - Declare that we are joint heirs with Christ of the glory of Christ, and on such intimate terms that we may address Him as Abba - Daddy.
- Mt. 6:9; 7:7-11 - Our adoption is the basis for our right of access to God in prayer.
- Heb. 12:6-10 - The sons of God receive His particular provision, protection, and discipline.

It should be understood that God is not the father of all men and that our sonship is not equal to that of Jesus who is the same in substance as the Father, and equal in glory and power.

SANCTIFICATION

ERRORS IN REGARD

1. Nominalist believes that spiritual growth is optional.
2. Carnal Christian. An idea popularized by C.I. Scofield and Bill Bright that divides men into 3 classes: natural man (non-Christian), spiritual man (Christian who trusts God), and carnal man (the Christian who doesn't trust God) based on I Cor. 3:1-3. There are not two classes of Christians, however. There are no believers who know Christ as Savior and not as Lord. This doctrine seems to be a consequence of man-centered evangelistic methods in which decisions are sought without adequate explanation of the cost of discipleship. This "carnal man" category has been invented to explain the spiritual state of countless people who have made "decisions" for Christ but show no outward evidence of regeneration.
3. Passivist believes that we make no real contribution to our spiritual transformation except to relinquish the control of our lives to God.
4. Quietism. "Let go and let God" is a phrase often used to characterize this movement also called the Keswick movement or "victorious life teaching."

MORAL/RELIGIOUS

Perfectionism. John Wesley taught that there was a second transforming work of grace subsequent to our regeneration in which God would utterly root out our sinful desires and cause us to be motivated only by an inner love for Christ at all times. This work was instantaneous and could lead to an absolute freedom from committing any voluntary transgression of God's law. Wesley himself unfortunately called this coveted position "sinless perfection."

Moralism/Religion. A final false solution is that of the Moralism, whose motto is, "Just try harder!"

O you dear idiots of Galatia, who saw Jesus Christ the crucified so plainly, who has been casting a spell over you? I will ask you one simple question: did you receive the Spirit of God by trying to keep the Law or by believing the message of the Gospel? Surely you can't be so idiotic as to think that a man begins his spiritual life in the Spirit and then completes it by reverting to outward observances? Has all your painful experience brought you nowhere? I simply cannot believe it of you! Does God, who gives you his Spirit and works miracles among you, do these things because you have obeyed the Law or because you have believed the Gospel? J.B. Phillips, The New Testament In Modern English, Gal. 3:1-5.

Sanctification: Biblical view. Sanctification is a process of God's grace, where our new nature is renewed after the image of Christ, and enabled to more and more die to sin and live righteously (Rom. 6:1-2, 6, 11-14). While unregenerate man is "non posse non peccare," the redeemed are "posse non peccare"—able not to sin! (Eph. 4:17- 32; Phil. 2:12, 13; II Cor. 5:17).

The process of sanctification will not be completed in this life. We will not achieve perfection.

Good Works. The question is often posed, "What is the place of good works?" Rome's view is that sanctification precedes justification. That God can't declare a person righteous without evidence of charity and love in them. Luther differed and taught that man was "Simul justus et peccator" - at the same time just and a sinner. We are justified by faith alone but not by a faith that is alone.

Roman Catholic View..... Faith + Works = Justification
 Dispensational View Faith - Works = Justification - Works
 Reformed View Faith = Justification + Works

We are saved unto good works, they are the evidence that God has regenerated the believer. If there are no good works, there is no salvation and never was. (Mt. 25:31-46; Jam. 2:14-17; I Jn. 3:16-19)

GLORIFICATION

The souls of believers at death are made perfect and immediately pass into glory. Our bodies rest in their graves until the resurrection, when we shall be acquitted in the Day of Judgment, fitted with a new body, and enjoy the blessedness of God for all eternity.

REVIEW

The ordo salutis is:

- Effectual calling
- Regeneration
- Conversion – Faith & Repentance
- Justification
- Adoption
- Sanctification
- Glorification

READING ASSIGNMENT

1. Read Essential Truths of the Christian Faith, (Sproul), sections 65-71.
2. Read The Westminster Confession of Faith, chapters 11-18.

THE CENTRALITY OF THE GOSPEL

DR. TIMOTHY KELLER

The gospel is the central element in the Christian life and continually renews the believer and the Church. Outlined in this article are fifteen ways in which the gospel impacts the believer and eight ways it nurtures the Church.

PRINCIPLE

In Galatians 2:14, Paul lays down a powerful principle. He deals with Peter's racial pride and cowardice by declaring that he was not living "in line with the truth of the gospel." From this we see that the Christian life is a process of renewing every dimension of our life—spiritual, psychological, corporate, social—by thinking, hoping, and living out the "lines" or ramifications of the gospel. The gospel is to be applied to every area of thinking, feeling, relating, working, and behaving. The implications and applications of Galatians 2:14 are vast.

PART I: IMPLICATIONS AND APPLICATIONS

IMPLICATION #1 — THE POWER OF THE GOSPEL

First, Paul is showing us that bringing the gospel truth to bear on every area of life is the way to be changed by the power of God. The gospel is described in the Bible in the most astounding terms. Angels long to look into it all the time (1 Peter 1:12). It does not simply bring us power, but it is the power of God itself, for Paul says, "I am not ashamed of the gospel, because it is the power of God for salvation" (Rom. 1:16). It is also the blessing of God with benefits that accrue to anyone who comes near (1 Cor. 9:23). It is even called the very light of the glory of God itself: "they cannot see the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ... For God... [has] made his light shine in our hearts to give us the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ" (2 Cor. 4:4, 6).

After the gospel has regenerated us and we are converted, it is the instrument of all continual growth and spiritual progress: "All over the world this gospel is bearing fruit and growing, just as it has been doing among you since the day you heard it and understood God's grace in all its truth" (Col. 1:6). Here we learn several things: (1) The gospel is a living thing (cf. Rom 1:16), like a seed or a tree that brings more and more new life—bearing fruit and growing. (2) The gospel is "planted" in us so as to bear fruit only as we understand its greatness and implications deeply—understood God's grace in all its truth. (3) The gospel continues to grow in us and renew us throughout our lives—as it has been doing since the day you heard it. This text helps us avoid either an exclusively rationalistic or mystical approach to renewal. On the one hand, the gospel has a content—it is profound doctrine. It is truth, and specifically, it is the truth about God's grace. But on the other hand, this truth is a living power that continually expands its influence in our lives, just as a crop or a tree would grow and spread and increasingly dominate an area with roots and fruit.

IMPLICATION #2 — THE SUFFICIENCY OF THE GOSPEL

Second, Paul is showing that in our Christian life we never "get beyond the gospel" to something more advanced. The gospel is not the first step in a stairway of truths; rather, it is more like the hub in a wheel of truth. The gospel is not just the ABCs but the A to Z of Christianity. The gospel is not the minimum required doctrine necessary to enter the kingdom but the way we make all progress in the kingdom.

We are not justified by the gospel and then sanctified by obedience; rather the gospel is the way we grow (Gal. 3:1–3) and are renewed (Col. 1:6). It is the solution to each problem, the key to each closed door, the power to take us through every barrier (Rom. 1:16–17). It is very common in the church to think as follows: “The gospel is for non-Christians. One needs it to be saved. But once saved, you grow through hard work and obedience.” But Colossians 1:6 shows that this is a mistake. Both confession and “hard work” that is not arising from and in line with the gospel will not sanctify you—they will strangle you. All our problems come from a failure to apply the gospel. Thus when Paul left the Ephesians he committed them “to the word of his grace, which can build you up” (Acts 20:32).

The main problem in the Christian life, then, is that we have not thought out the deep implications of the gospel; we have not “used” the gospel in and on all parts of our life. Richard Lovelace says that most people’s problems are just a failure to be oriented to the gospel—a failure to grasp and believe it through and through.¹ Luther says, “[The truth of the Gospel] is also the principal article of all Christian doctrine. . . . Most necessary is it therefore, that we should know this article well, teach it unto others, and beat it into their heads continually.”² The gospel is not easily comprehended. Paul says that the gospel does its renewing work in us only as we understand it in all its truth. All of us to some degree live around the truth of the gospel but do not “get it.” So the key to continual and deeper spiritual renewal and revival is continual rediscovery of the gospel. The discovery of a new implication or application of the gospel—seeing more of its truth—is an important stage of any renewal. This is true for either an individual or a church.

APPLICATIONS

The two “thieves” of the gospel

Since Paul uses the metaphor of being “in line” with the gospel, we can consider that gospel renewal occurs when we keep from walking “off line” either to the right or to the left. A key for thinking out the implications of the gospel is to consider the gospel a third way between two mistaken opposites. However, we must realize that the gospel is not a halfway compromise between these two poles—it produces not something in the middle but something different from both.

Tertullian, a Christian writer in the second and third centuries, said, “Just as Christ was crucified between two thieves, so this doctrine of justification is ever crucified between two opposite errors.” He meant that there were two basic false ways of thinking, each of which “steals” the power and the distinctiveness of the gospel from us by pulling us to one side or the other of the “gospel line.” These two errors are very powerful, because they represent the natural tendency of the human heart and mind.

(The gospel is “revealed” by God [Rom. 1:17]—the unaided human mind cannot conceive it.) The “thieves” can be called moralism or legalism on the one hand and hedonism or relativism on the other hand. Another way to put it is: the gospel opposes both religion and irreligion (see Matt. 21:31; 22:10). On the one hand, moralism/religion stresses truth without grace, for it says that we must obey the truth in order to be saved. On the other hand, relativism/irreligion stresses grace without truth, for it says that we are all accepted by God (if there is a God) and we have to decide what is true for us. But “truth” without grace is not really truth, and “grace” without truth is not really grace. Jesus was “full of grace and truth" (John 1:14). Any religion or philosophy of life that deemphasizes or loses one or the other of these truths falls into legalism or license, and either way, the joy and power and release of the gospel are stolen.

The moralism-religion thief. How does moralism/religion steal joy and power?

Moralism is the view that you are acceptable (to God, the world, others, yourself) through your attainments. Moralists do not have to be religious but often are. When they are, their religion is pretty conservative and filled with rules. Sometimes moralists have a view of God as very holy and just. This view will lead either to (a) self-hatred (because they can't live up to the standards) or (b) self-inflation (because they think they have lived up to the standards). It is ironic that inferiority and superiority complexes have the very same root. Whether the moralist ends up smug and superior or crushed and guilty just depends on how high the standards are and on his or her natural advantages such as family, intelligence, looks, willpower. Moralistic people can be deeply religious—but there is no transforming joy or power.

The relativism-irreligion thief. How does relativism steal joy and power?

Relativists are usually irreligious, or else they prefer what is called "liberal" religion. On the surface, they are more happy and tolerant than moralistic/religious people. Although they may be highly idealistic in some areas (such as politics), they believe that everyone needs to determine what is right and wrong for themselves. They are not convinced that God is just and must punish sinners. Their beliefs in God will tend to picture him as loving or as an impersonal force. They may talk a great deal about God's love, but since they do not think of themselves as sinners, God's love for humankind costs him nothing. If God accepts us, it is because he is so welcoming or because we are not so bad. The gospel's concept of God's love is far richer and deeper and more electrifying.

What do both religious and irreligious people have in common?

They seem so different, but from the viewpoint of the gospel, they are really the same.

They are both ways to avoid Jesus as Savior and keep control of their lives.

Irreligious people seek to be their own saviors and lords through "worldly" pride. ("No one tells me how to live or what to do; I determine what is right and wrong for me!") But moral and religious people seek to be their own saviors and lords through "religious" pride. ("I am more moral and spiritual than other people, so God owes it to me to listen to my prayers and take me to heaven. God cannot let just anything happen to me—he owes me a happy life. I've earned it!") The irreligious person rejects Jesus entirely; the religious person uses Jesus as an example and helper and teacher—but not as a Savior. In her novel Wise Blood, Flannery O'Connor's main character Hazel thinks "that the way to avoid Jesus [is] to avoid sin." These are two different ways to do the same thing—control one's own life. (Note: Ironically, moralists, despite all the emphasis on traditional standards, are in the end self-centered and individualistic, because they have set themselves up as their own savior. Relativists, despite all their emphasis on freedom and acceptance, are in the end moralistic, because they still have to live up to [their own] standards or become desperate. And often they take great pride in their own open-mindedness and judge others who are not.)

They are both based on distorted views of the real God.

The irreligious person loses sight of the law and holiness of God, and the religious person loses sight of the love and grace of God; in the end they both lose the gospel entirely. For the gospel is that on the cross Jesus fulfilled the law of God out of love for us. Without a full understanding of the work of Christ, the reality of God's holiness will make his grace unreal, or the reality of God's love will make his holiness unreal. Only the gospel—that we are so sinful that we need to be saved utterly by grace—allows us to see God as he really is. The gospel shows us a God far more holy than the legalist can bear (he had to die because we could not satisfy his holy demands), and yet far more merciful than a humanist can conceive (he had to die because he loved us).

They both deny our sin—and therefore lose the joy and power of grace.

It is obvious that relativistic, irreligious people deny the depth of sin, and thus the message “God loves you” has no power for them. But although religious persons may be extremely penitent and sorry for their sins, they see sins as simply a failure to live up to standards by which they are saving themselves. They do not see sin as the deeper self-righteousness and self-centeredness through which they are trying to live lives independent of God. So when they go to Jesus for forgiveness, they go only as a way to cover over the gaps in their project of self-salvation. And when people say, “I know God is forgiving, but I cannot forgive myself,” they mean that they reject God’s grace and insist that they be worthy of his favor. So even religious people with “low self-esteem” are actually in their state because they will not see the depth of sin. They see it only as rule-breaking, not as rebellion and self-salvation.

A WHOLE NEW WAY OF SEEING GOD

Christians have adopted a whole new system of approach to God. They may have gone through both religious and irreligious phases in the past, but they have come to see that the reasons for both their irreligion and their religion were essentially the same, and essentially wrong! Christians come to see that both their sins and their best deeds have all been ways of avoiding Jesus as Savior. They come to see that Christianity is not fundamentally an invitation to become more religious. A Christian comes to say, “Though I have often failed to obey the moral law, the deeper problem was why I was trying to obey it. Even my efforts to obey it have been just ways of seeking to be my own savior. In that mindset, even if I obey or ask for forgiveness, I am really resisting the gospel and setting myself up as savior.” To “get” the gospel is to turn from self-justification and rely on Jesus’ record for a relationship with God. The irreligious don’t repent at all, and the religious repent only of sins; Christians also repent of their righteousness. That is the distinction between the three groups—Christians, moralists (religious), and pragmatists (irreligious).

SUMMARY

Without a knowledge of our extreme sin, the payment of the cross seems trivial and does not electrify or transform us. But without a knowledge of Christ’s completely satisfying life and death, the knowledge of sin would crush us or move us to deny and repress it. Take away either the knowledge of sin or the knowledge of grace and people’s lives are not changed. They will either be crushed by the moral law or run from it in anger. So the gospel is not that we go from being irreligious to being religious but that we realize that our reasons for both our religiosity and our irreligiosity were essentially the same and essentially wrong. We were seeking to be our own savior and thereby keep control of our own life. When we trust in Christ as our Redeemer, we turn from trusting either self-determination or self-denial, either hedonism or moralism, for our salvation.

A WHOLE NEW WAY OF SEEING LIFE

Paul shows us, then, that we must not simply ask in every area of life, “What is the moral way to act?” but “What is the way that is in line with the gospel?” The gospel must be continually thought out to keep us from moving into our habitual moralistic or individualistic directions. We must bring everything in line with the gospel.

Note: Relativists (as noted above) are ultimately moralistic, and therefore they can be respectful only of other people who believe everything is relative! But Christians cannot feel morally superior to relativists.

PART II: THE KEY TO EVERYTHING

The gospel is the way that anything is renewed and transformed by Christ—whether a heart, a relationship, a church, or a community. It is the key to all doctrine and to our view of our lives in this world. Therefore, all our problems come from a lack of orientation to the gospel. Put positively, the gospel transforms our hearts and thinking and approaches to absolutely everything.

A. THE GOSPEL AND THE INDIVIDUAL

1. Approach to discouragement. When a person is depressed, the moralist says, "You are breaking the rules—repent." On the other hand, the relativist says, "You just need to love and accept yourself." Without the gospel, superficialities will be addressed instead of the heart. The moralist will work on behavior and the relativist will work on the emotions themselves. But (assuming there is no physiological basis for the depression) the gospel leads us to examine ourselves and say, "Something in my life has become more important than God, a pseudo-savior, a form of works-righteousness." The gospel leads us to repentance, not to merely setting our will against superficial issues.
2. Approach to the physical world. Some moralists are indifferent to the physical world and see it as "unimportant." Other moralists are downright afraid of physical pleasure, and since they are seeking to earn their salvation, they prefer to focus on sins of a physical nature like a failure to discipline sex and the other appetites. These are easier to avoid than sins of the spirit like pride. Therefore, moralists prefer to see sins of the body as worse than other kinds. The legalism that results usually leads to a distaste of pleasure. On the other hand, the relativist is often a hedonist, someone who is controlled by pleasure and makes it an idol. The gospel leads us to see that God has created both body and soul and so will redeem both body and soul, although under sin both body and soul are broken. Thus the gospel leads us to enjoy the physical (and to fight against physical brokenness, such as sickness and poverty) yet to be moderate in our use of material things.
3. Approach to love and relationships. Moralism often makes relationships into a "blame game." This is because a moralist is traumatized by criticism that is too severe and maintains a self-image as a good person by blaming others. On the other hand, moralism can use the procuring of love as the way to "earn our salvation" and convince ourselves we are worthy persons. That often creates what is called "codependency"—a form of self-salvation through needing people or needing people to need you (that is, saving yourself by saving others). On the other hand, much relativism reduces love to a negotiated partnership for mutual benefit. You relate only as long as it is not costing you anything. So the choice without the gospel is to selfishly use others or to selfishly let yourself be used by others. But the gospel leads us to do neither. We do sacrifice and commit ourselves, but not out of a need to convince ourselves or others that we are acceptable. We can love the person enough to confront when that's needed, yet stay with the person even when it does not benefit us.
4. Approach to suffering. Moralism takes the "Job's friends" approach, laying guilt on yourself. You simply assume, "I must be bad to be suffering." Under the guilt, though, there is always anger toward God. Why? Because moralists believe that God owes them. The whole point of moralism is to put God in your debt. Because you have been so moral, you feel you don't really deserve suffering. Moralism tears you up, for at one level you think, "What did I do to deserve this?" but on another level you think, "I probably did everything to deserve this!" When the moralist suffers, then, he or she must either feel mad at God (because I have been performing well) or mad at self (because I have not been performing well) or both. On the other hand, the relativist/pragmatist feels justified in avoiding suffering at all costs—lying, cheating, and broken promises are okay. But when suffering does come, the pragmatist lays the fault at God's doorstep, claiming that he must be either unjust or impotent. The cross shows us, however, that God redeemed us through suffering. God suffered not that we might not suffer but that in our suffering we could become like him. Since both the moralist and the pragmatist ignore the cross, they will both be confused and devastated by suffering.

5. Approach to sexuality. The relativist sees sex as merely biological and physical appetite. The moralist tends to see sex as dirty or at least a dangerous impulse that leads constantly to sin. But the gospel shows us that sexuality is to reflect the self-giving of Christ. He gave himself completely without conditions, so we are not to seek intimacy while holding on to control of our life. If we give ourselves sexually, we are to give ourselves legally, socially, personally—utterly. Sex is to happen only within a totally committed, permanent relationship of marriage.
6. Approach to one's family. Moralism can make you a slave to parental expectations, while relativism sees no need for family loyalty or the keeping of promises and covenants if they do not "meet my needs." The gospel frees you from making parental approval an absolute or psychological salvation, for it points to how God becomes the ultimate Father. Then you will neither be too dependent on nor too hostile toward your parents.
7. Approach to self-control. Moralists tell us to control our passions for fear of punishment. This is a volition-based approach. Relativism tells us to express ourselves and find out what is right for us. This is an emotion-based approach. The gospel tells us that the free, unconditional grace of God "teaches" us to "say no" to our passions (Titus 2:12) if we listen to it. This is a whole-person approach, starting with the truth descending into the heart.
8. Approach to witness. The pragmatist would deny the legitimacy of evangelism altogether. The moralist person does believe in proselytizing, because "we are right and they are wrong." Such proselytizing is almost always offensive. But the gospel produces a different constellation of traits in us: First, we are compelled to share the gospel out of generosity and love, not guilt. Second, we are freed from fear of being ridiculed or hurt by others, since we already have God's favor by grace. Third, we learn humility in our dealings with others, because we know we are saved by grace alone, not because of our superior insight or character. Fourth, we are hopeful about everyone, even the "hard cases," because we ourselves were saved only because of grace, not because we were likely people to be Christians. Fifth, we are courteous and careful with people. We don't have to push or coerce them, for it is only God's grace that opens hearts, not our eloquence or persistence or even their openness. All these traits create not only a winsome evangelist but an excellent neighbor in a multicultural society.
9. Approach to human authority. Moralists will tend to obey human authorities (family, tribe, government, cultural customs) too much, since they rely so heavily on their self-image of being moral and decent. Relativists will obey human authority either too much (since they have no higher authority by which they can judge their culture) or else too little (they may obey only when they know they won't get caught). That means either authoritarianism or anarchy. But the gospel gives you both a standard by which to oppose human authority—if it contradicts the gospel—and an incentive to obey the civil authorities from the heart, even when you could get away with disobedience.
10. Approach to human dignity. Moralists often have a pretty low view of human nature—they mainly see human sin and depravity. Relativists, on the other hand, have no good basis for treating people with dignity. Usually they have no religious beliefs about what human beings are. (If people are just chance products of evolution, how do we know they are more valuable than a rock?) But the gospel shows us that every human being is infinitely fallen (lost in sin) and infinitely exalted (in the image of God). So we treat every human being as precious, yet dangerous!

11. Approach to cultural differences. Moralists tend to be very proud of their culture. They easily fall into cultural imperialism and attach spiritual significance to their cultural norms. This happens because moralistic people are very insecure; they take the eternal law very seriously but know deep down they cannot keep it. Therefore, they use cultural differences to buttress their sense of righteousness. Relativists, on the other hand, believe every culture should be accepted on its own terms and that every cultural expression is equally good. The gospel teaches us to discern the good and the bad in every culture and enables us to love and honor one another across cultural differences. Every person is made in the image of God, so every culture will reflect that image of God in unique ways. At the same time, every culture, including our own, is subject to the fall and exhibits cultural idols, so we can feel morally or culturally superior to no one.
12. Approach to guilt. When you say, "I can't forgive myself," it means there is some standard or condition or person that is more central to your identity than the grace of God. If you cannot forgive yourself, it is because you have failed your real god, your real righteousness, and it is holding you captive. The moralist's false god is usually a god of their imagination that is holy and demanding but not gracious. The relativist's false god is usually some achievement or relationship. God is the only God who forgives—no other "god" will.
13. Approach to self-image. Without the gospel, your self-image is based upon living up to some standards—whether yours or someone else's imposed upon you. If you live up to those standards, you will be confident but not humble. If you don't live up to them, you will be humble but not confident. Only in the gospel can you be both enormously bold and utterly sensitive and humble. For you are both perfect and a sinner!
14. Approach to joy and humor. Moralism eats away at joy and humor—because the system of legalism forces you to take yourself (your image, your appearance, your reputation) very seriously. Relativism, on the other hand, will tend toward cynicism as life goes on. This cynicism grows from a lack of hope for the world: in the end evil will triumph—there is no judgment or divine justice. But if we are saved by grace alone, then the very fact of being Christian is a constant source of amazed delight for us. There is nothing matter-of-fact about our lives, no "of course" to our lives. It is a miracle that we are Christians, and we have hope. So the gospel that creates bold humility should give us a deep sense of humor. We don't have to take ourselves seriously, and we are full of hope for the world.
15. Approach to "right living." Jonathan Edwards points out that "true virtue" is possible only for those who have experienced the grace of the gospel. Any person who is trying to earn their salvation does "the right thing" in order to get into heaven, or in order to better their self-esteem, or for another essentially self-interested reason. But persons who know they are totally accepted already do the right thing out of sheer delight in righteousness for its own sake. Only in the gospel do you obey God for God's sake and not for what God will give you. Only in the gospel do you love people for their sake (not yours), do good for its own sake (not yours), and obey God for his sake (not yours). Only the gospel makes doing the right thing a joy and delight, not a burden or a means to an end.

B. THE GOSPEL AND THE CHURCH

1. Approach to ministry in the world. Moralism tends to place all the emphasis on the individual human soul. Moralistic religionists will insist on converting others to their faith and church but will ignore the social needs of the broader community. On the other hand, "liberalism" will tend to emphasize only amelioration of social conditions and minimize the need for repentance and conversion. The gospel leads to love, which in turn moves us to give our neighbor whatever is needed—conversion or a cup of cold water, evangelism and social concern.

2. Approach to worship. Moralism leads to a dour and somber kind of worship that may be long on dignity but is short on joy. A shallow understanding of “acceptance” without a sense of God’s holiness, on the other hand, can lead to frothy or casual worship. (Meanwhile, a sense of neither God’s love nor his holiness leads to a worship service that feels like a committee meeting!) But the gospel leads us to see that God is both transcendent and immanent. His immanence makes his transcendence comforting, while his transcendence makes his immanence amazing. The gospel leads to both awe and intimacy in worship, for the Holy One is now our Father.
3. Approach to the poor. The pragmatist tends to scorn the faith of the poor and see them as helpless victims needing expertise. This is born out of a disbelief in God’s common grace to all. Ironically, the secular mindset also dismisses the reality of sin, and thus anyone who is poor must be oppressed, a helpless victim. Moralists, on the other hand, tend to scorn the poor as failures and weaklings. They see them as somehow to blame for their situation. But the gospel leads us to be (a) humble, without moral superiority, knowing that we were spiritually bankrupt but have been saved by Christ’s free generosity; (b) gracious, not worried too much about “deservingness,” since we didn’t deserve Christ’s grace; and (c) respectful of believing poor Christians as brothers and sisters from whom we can learn. It is only the gospel that can bring people into a humble respect for and solidarity with the poor.
4. Approach to doctrinal distinctives. The “already” of the New Testament makes us bold in our proclamation. We can most definitely be sure of the central doctrines that support the gospel. But the “not yet” requires charity and humility in nonessential beliefs. That is, we must be moderate about what we teach except when it comes to the cross, grace, and sin. In our views, especially our opinions on issues that Christians cannot agree on, we must be less unbending and triumphalistic (believing we have arrived intellectually). It also means that our discernment of God’s call and will for us and others must not be propagated with overweening assurance that our insight cannot be wrong. (Unlike pragmatists, we must be willing to die for our belief in the gospel; unlike moralists, we must keep in mind that not every one of our beliefs is worth fighting to the death for.)
5. Approach to holiness. The gospel’s “already” means we should not tolerate sin. With the presence of the kingdom, we are made “partakers of the divine nature” (2 Peter 1:4). The gospel brings us the confidence that anyone can be changed, any enslaving habit can be overcome. But the gospel’s “not yet” means that our sin remains in us and will never be eliminated until the fullness of the kingdom comes. So we must avoid pat answers, and we must not expect quick fixes. Unlike moralists, we must be patient with slow growth or lapses and be aware of the complexity of change and growth in grace. Unlike pragmatists and cynics, we must insist that miraculous change is possible.
6. Approach to miracles. The “already” of the kingdom means that power for miracles and healing is available. Jesus demonstrated the kingdom by healing the sick and raising the dead. But the gospel’s “not yet” means that nature (including us) is still subject to decay (Rom. 8:22–23) and thus sickness and death remain inevitable until the final consummation. We cannot expect miracles and freedom from suffering to be such normal parts of the Christian life that we will glide through our days with no pain. Unlike moralists, we know that God can heal and do miracles; unlike pragmatists, we do not aim to press God into eliminating suffering.
7. Approach to church health. The “already” of the kingdom means that the church is now the community of kingdom power. It is therefore capable of mightily transforming its community.

Evangelism that adds “to their number daily those who [are] being saved” (Acts 2:47) is possible! Loving fellowship that destroys “the dividing wall of hostility” (Eph. 2:14) between different races and classes is possible! But the “not yet” of the kingdom means Jesus has not yet presented his bride, the church, “as a radiant church, without stain or wrinkle or any other blemish” (Eph. 5:27). We must not then be harshly critical of imperfect congregations nor jump impatiently from church to church over perceived blemishes. Error will never be completely eradicated from the church. The kingdom’s “not yet” also means to avoid an overly severe imposition of church discipline and other means to seek to bring about a perfect church today.

8. Approach to social change. We must not forget that Christ is even now ruling in a sense over history (Eph. 1:22–23). The “already” of grace means that Christians can expect to use God’s power to change social conditions and communities. But the “not yet” of sin means there will be “wars and rumors of wars.” Selfishness, cruelty, terrorism, and oppression will continue. Christians harbor no illusions about politics nor expect utopian conditions. The “not yet” means that Christians will not trust any political or social agenda to bring about righteousness here on earth. So the gospel keeps us from the overpessimism of fundamentalism (moralism) about social change and also from the overoptimism of liberalism (pragmatism).

SUMMARY

All problems, personal or social, come from a failure to apply the gospel in a radical way, a failure to get “in line with the truth of the gospel” (Gal. 2:14). All pathologies in the church and all its ineffectiveness come from a failure to let the gospel be expressed in a radical way. If the gospel is expounded and applied in its fullness in any church, that church will begin to look very unique. People will find in it both moral conviction yet compassion and flexibility.

Copyright © 2000 by Timothy Keller. This article appeared in adapted form in Chapter 3 of the book Center Church by Timothy Keller (Grand Rapids: Zondervan, 2012).

We encourage you to use and share this material freely—but please don’t charge money for it, change the wording, or remove the copyright information.

The Transforming Power of the Gospel

By Steven L. Childers

I am a recovering Pharisee. I love the praise of man more than the praise of God. I naturally substitute a knowledge about God and godliness for truly knowing God. I can defend the truths of the Gospel, but I often fail to experience its transforming power in my life.

The depth of my Pharisaism was exposed several years ago while I co-taught a Doctor of Ministry class. During one session, my colleague realized how many of the pastors and Christian leaders in our class seemed discouraged and spiritually defeated. I, too, was struggling – just doing a great job of disguising it in front of the class.

Observing the pain all around him, he took me aside and suggested I divide the class into groups of three and lead them in sharing the Gospel with each other. I was stunned. "Why?" I wondered. Did he think some of these people weren't really Christians?

As he explained, however, I realized how faulty my reasoning had been. I had assumed that the Gospel was for non-Christians alone and had little or no relevance to the Christian life once someone was converted. I began learning that day that the Gospel is not just a gate I must pass through one time, but a path I should walk each day of my life.

It's a painfully common story. We begin the Christian life well, but gradually find ourselves increasingly experiencing little or no true spiritual transformation.

The good news for Christians is that a divine remedy for our cold and hardened hearts is available!

And that remedy is found in the transforming power of the Gospel, the goal of which is not just our regeneration but also our transformation into the image of Christ. Its purpose is not merely forgiveness but change into true worshippers of God and authentic lovers of people.

However, we often reduce the Gospel to "God's plan of salvation" for lost people to be saved from sin's penalty, not realizing that it is also "God's plan of salvation" for Christians to be saved from sin's power. The same Gospel message that saves sinners also sanctifies the saints.

In order to understand more fully how the Gospel saves us as believers and thereby changes our hearts, we must first learn to reject the counterfeit spiritual remedies being freely dispensed today.

Counterfeit Remedies

The Nominalist response to a lack of spiritual transformation in the heart of a Christian is to say "Don't worry about it. That's just part of being human. Don't you know we're under grace and not law?" But the Bible teaches that any long-term friendship with sin should alert us to the deadness of our hearts and, perhaps, to our unsaved state.

The second prescription we must reject is that of the Passivist, who believes that, as Christians, we make no real contribution to our spiritual transformation except to relinquish control of our lives to God. To solve our spiritual battles we just need to "let go and let God". This view can easily lead us to spend our entire lives chasing one false hope or experience after another in search of "something more" to make our faith more fulfilling. Instead of seeking "something more", we must learn how to understand and draw upon all that we already have "in Christ" (Col. 2:9,10).

A final false solution is that of the Moralist, whose motto is: "Just try harder!" This view is packaged to look a lot more sophisticated and spiritual than that, but if you listen closely you still will hear one core message: try harder to spend more time in the Word and prayer – try harder to be a better witness – try harder not to be angry or worry – try harder to be a more loving spouse or parent. We can hear only so many motivating pep talks on trying harder by our own human effort to change before we find ourselves lapsing into either a lifestyle of spiritual denial or despair over the glaring lack of inward reality in our lives. The Apostle Paul wrote, "Are you so foolish? After beginning with the Spirit, are you now trying to attain your goal by human effort?" (Gal. 3:3).

Our Core Problem: "Heart Idolatry"

The reason the above prescriptions inevitably leave people unchanged and in either denial or despair is because they all bypass the heart. Our root problem is not external or behavioral; it is a problem of the heart.

True spirituality is not only a matter of the mind and the will; it is also a matter of the heart. In his classic work Religious Affections, Jonathan Edwards writes, "A person who has a knowledge of doctrine and theology only– without religious affection—has never engaged in true religion.”

One of the primary reasons my heart is not more transformed is because I have allowed what the Puritans called “the affections of my heart” to be captured by idols that grip me and steal my heart affection away from God.

The modern idols that capture our hearts’ affections today are things like approval, reputation, possessions, power, pleasure, control, relationships, sex or money. When we allow the affections of our hearts to be captured and corrupted by these idols, the outcome is always the same – a lack of God’s transforming power and presence in our lives.

The Divine Remedy: Repent and Believe in the Gospel

How, then, does the power of the Gospel transform our idolatrous hearts? Through repentance and faith. Jesus’ message was simple but life-changing, “Repent and believe the good news!” (Mk. 1:15). The Apostle Paul made clear that repentance and faith were to be ongoing in the life of the believer when he wrote, “...just as you received Christ Jesus as Lord, so walk in Him” (Col. 2:6).

Through repentance we pull our heart affections away from our idols and, by faith, put them back on Jesus Christ. We must all learn to ask, “What idol does my heart presently crave?” Once identified, we must be willing to take radical action against our idols, sapping their life-dominating power.

Repentance, however, is only half of our responsibility in transformation – the negative, defensive side of the equation. The other responsibility given to us in Scripture is the positive, offensive strategy called faith, which involves learning how to set the affections of our mind and heart on Christ. He wants us to enjoy Him and desire Him more than all of our idols.

Faith requires a continual rehearsing and delighting in the many privileges that are now ours in Christ.

You Are Forgiven! Instead of continually punishing ourselves for our sins, trying to earn forgiveness, or attempting to measure up to perfectionistic standards, we must learn to claim by faith God’s promise of His eternal forgiveness through Christ’s blood (Col. 2:13). The good news is that we can do absolutely nothing to make God love us any more or less! Thinking that our behavior causes us to phase in and out of His favor will short circuit your growth in grace.

You are Accepted! (2 Cor 5:21). We no longer need to fear rejection. We no longer must win the approval of others or hide all our weaknesses. We don’t always have to defend or build our reputations. We can stop trying to be something we aren’t and admit to God and others that we are sinners. Now we can move toward others with a bold, Christ-like love – without fear of rejection.

You are Adopted! (1 Jn 3:1-2). We don’t need to live or feel like spiritual orphans anymore. God does not see us as merely pardoned criminals, but as His very own sons and daughters! We now have immediate access into the Father’s presence, the promise of His provision for our every need and the privilege of His discipline for our good.

You Are Free! No matter how defeated we may now feel in our battle with sin, we are no longer in bondage to it (Rom. 6:5-18). No matter what our current struggle, true hope exists for lasting change.

You Are Not Alone!

Through faith in Christ we have been given the gift of the Holy Spirit to come alongside us, to comfort us, to encourage us and to empower us to live the life God has called us to live (Jn. 16:5-15).

Claiming The Good News By Faith

It has been said that a stone lying in the sun can’t help but grow warm. In the same way, as we learn to expose our stony hearts to the warmth and light of the Gospel, we can’t help but be transformed. We should be preaching this Good News to ourselves and others constantly, so that no matter what our struggles and fears may be, we can be encouraged, strengthened and changed by hearing God’s voice repeating these eternal truths to our hearts again and again.

All God asks is that we continue to draw near to Him in repentance and faith through the cross of Jesus Christ. It is here that we humble ourselves, cast away all our pride and self-sufficiency, and admit what we really are to God. It is here that we find the supernatural power, courage, and strength to be more like Jesus Christ.

To my Roman Catholic friends:

I'll try to summarize my thoughts for you and give you some references that might be helpful. As you read and reflect, keep a list of your questions and concerns, which you can email to me or we can discuss later on the phone.

Here's what I would say about the "nub" of the issue: Over the years there have been many questions raised concerning the propriety of marriages between Roman Catholics and Evangelical Protestants. To many people the question itself is offensive, for it sounds just as silly as whether a Baptist should marry a Methodist or a Chinese should marry a Mexican. The reality, however, is that in this question there are some profound issues which must be considered before answering properly.

The primary question before us is whether the Roman Catholic Church and the Evangelical Protestant Church embrace a common faith. We must first of all realize that this question is not a matter of what an individual Roman Catholic or an individual Evangelical Protestant believes, but rather a matter of what each church has officially declared as their beliefs. On this question, we have plenty to go on. The churches, through the centuries, have published their views plainly. Now, we expect that there would be many differences between most religious traditions, but we must ask if there are significant differences on what we might call "cardinal doctrines." This, too, is available to us in the published creeds of the churches; and what we find, I think, presents us with major challenges.

It turns out that the two churches happily agree on many very important subjects: e.g., the Trinity, the deity of Christ, and the sanctity of human life. They also disagree, however, at the very heart of the Christian religion; that is, they disagree on what the gospel is. In fact, the two definitions are mutually exclusive. The Evangelical Protestant view is that, through faith alone in Jesus Christ alone, we are justified (that is, made acceptable to enter heaven) by an "alien righteousness" (the righteousness of Christ) graciously "imputed" to us. (Cf. Galatians 2:15,16; 3:10-15; Romans 3:19-31; 5:18,19; Philippians 3:8,9.) The Roman Catholic view (cf. Council of Trent, Chapters 15 and 16) is that we are justified by the righteousness of Christ "infused" in us through faith and our works (eminently the work of our participation in the church's sacraments). The Evangelical view is that upon justification we are immediately, fully, and irrevocably accepted by God as a saint and assured of our place in eternity (cf. Romans 5:1,2; 8:30). The Roman Catholic view is that our justification has only begun, will not be complete until we have progressed through purgatory and have thus achieved a sufficient degree of merit, and is, therefore, conditional and subject to change.

To complicate matters, historically, both churches formally anathematized the other's view, and neither church has rescinded its opinion. (See Documents of the Council of Trent, Session 6, Canons 9,10, and 11 (1547), and Westminster Confession of Faith, ch. 24, par. 3 (1647).) Although we believe that a person is justified not by his theological view of justification, but rather by his/her faith in the Lord Jesus, both the Roman Catholic Church and also the historic Protestant churches have declared that this doctrinal matter is of the utmost gravity in one's spiritual life (cf. Gal. 1:6-9), unlike the secondary doctrines that separate historic Baptists, Methodists, and Presbyterians.

As Evangelical Protestants, we have a great respect for our Roman Catholic friends. There are many Roman Catholics whom we deem to be faithful and exemplary Christians (in spite of what their church teaches on the matter of justification). There are multitudes of Roman Catholics who make enormous contributions to our public life and whom we are proud to number among our closest friends and associates. We are also committed to collaborating with our Roman Catholic friends in the many institutions we support together, the common causes we share, the similar hopes and dreams to which we aspire, and the many ways we work together to contribute to the betterment of our society. We have learned, and will continue to learn, from Roman Catholics on many matters concerning ethics, church history, theology, and liturgy. We often study the Bible together, feed the poor together, and serve on boards together, all of which we deeply appreciate. And on matters on which we disagree, we are committed to continuing dialogue and mutual edification, as God gives us opportunity. As is true with any genuine friendship, when we have deep conflicts in our theological views with Roman Catholics, we are committed to being open, honest, and reasonable.

Our concerns in the matters of marriage have to do not primarily with the personal views of individual Roman Catholics, but rather with the official positions taken by the Roman Catholic Church. We often find that when our Roman Catholic friends are presented with a clear biblical description of the gospel that they rejoice to join our evangelical faith and to walk with us, along with their families, in gospel discipleship. We also observe that when couples from differing backgrounds embrace the biblical gospel together they enjoy a unity of heart, a common purpose, and a spiritual power that is otherwise impossible.

We realize that Catholics and Protestants may continue to disagree on many secondary matters of liturgy and tradition that do not affect one's eternal salvation; but, in the matter of how one is justified before God, Catholics and Evangelical Protestants through the centuries have agreed: this is a cardinal matter, possibly affecting one's eternal life, and the two positions are mutually exclusive and irreconcilable. This, then, from both the historic Catholic and the historic Protestant perspectives, requires folks to make a responsible choice: either a) the Roman Catholic view of the gospel is right and the Evangelical Protestant view is wrong, or b) the Evangelical Protestant view of the gospel is right and the Roman Catholic view is wrong, or c) both views are wrong. The choice that is not responsibly available to anyone is d) both views are right. (Our liberal Protestant friends and our Jewish friends would probably say e) that neither view really matters very much to marriage or religion.)

There are, then, three fundamental questions each person needs to answer before considering a Roman Catholic/Evangelical Protestant marriage: 1) what is my view of the gospel; 2) what church shall I join who will nurture me and my family in that view of the gospel; and 3) does my future spouse answer the first two questions the same way I do? If the couple does not answer 1) and 2) in the same way, then, we believe, they run the risk of being "unequally yoked" in marriage.

I hope that explains why we (and traditional Roman Catholics, for that matter) have considered this an urgent matter. We're not just being "sectarian," but, rather, urging couples to examine carefully what they believe so that they can build a genuine Christian family on the foundation of the biblical gospel of Christ.

Here are the three books I suggest you might read (probably in this order):

Holy Ground, by Chris Castaldo. This is written by a former Roman Catholic, primarily as a guide to other former Roman Catholics in relating successfully to their Roman Catholic family members and friends, but there is much in it that I think would be helpful to you in your search.

Are We Together? A Protestant Analysis of Roman Catholicism, by R.C. Sproul. This is a sharp, brief evangelical critique of Roman Catholic views. It would be helpful to digest. You won't get the warm fuzzies from this book, but you will get the full weight of the evangelical concerns.

Roman Catholics and Evangelicals: Agreements and Differences, by Norman Geisler and Ralph MacKenzie. This is widely acclaimed as a helpful and even-handed presentation of the two views. They really lay it all out theologically, at length.

I look forward to hearing your reflections on all of this. I'm praying for you and _____ in the days ahead.

Authored by: Rev. Sanders L. (Sandy) Willson
Senior Minister
Second Presbyterian Church
Memphis, Tennessee

ORDO SALUTIS - Order of Salvation

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

♦ Universal

♦ Effectual

REGENERATION

Titus 3:5
Ezek. 36:26
John 3:3
1 Peter 1:3
2 Cor. 4:6

CONVERSION

♦ Faith
Eph. 2:8, John 1:11, Heb 11:24

♦ Repentance
Acts 2:37, Rom. 2:4, 1 John 1:9, James 5:16

Justification

Rom 4:1-5
Col. 2:13

Adoption

John 1:12
Rom. 8:15-16
Matt. 7:9-11

UNION
with CHRIST

Repent →
↑ Obey Believe
←

SANCTIFICATION

♦ Definitive
1 Cor. 6:11, 1 Cor. 1:2

♦ Progressive
Heb. 10:14, Rom. 8:13, Phil 2:12

Glorification

1 Th. 5:9, Jude 24, Rev. 21:5

Reformed Theology Class

Reformed Theology

Class 5

ORDO SALUTIS

Perseverance

Regeneration

Salvation

Justification

Propitiation

Expiation

Sanctification

New Birth

Predestination

Repentance

Atonement

Foreloved

Glorification

Adoption

Forgiveness

FAITH

Conversion

Imputation

Reconciliation

Foreknowledge

Predestination

Rom. 8:29 For those whom he foreknew he also predestined to be conformed to the image of his Son, in order that he might be the firstborn among many brothers. 30 And those whom he predestined he also called, and those whom he called he also justified, and those whom he justified he also glorified.

Eph. 1:4 even as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before him. In love 5 he predestined us for adoption to himself as sons through Jesus Christ, according to the purpose of his will, 6 to the praise of his glorious grace, with which he has blessed us in the Beloved.

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Rom. 8:30 And those whom he predestined he also called, and those whom he called he also justified, and those whom he justified he also glorified.

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Matt. 23:37 “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to it! How often would I have gathered your children together as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you were not willing!

Ezek. 18:23 “Do you think that I like to see wicked people die? says the Sovereign LORD. Of course not! I want them to turn from their wicked ways and live.

1Tim. 2:4 [God] desires all people to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth.

John 3:16 “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life.

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

John 10:2 But he who enters by the door is the shepherd of the sheep. 3 To him the gatekeeper opens. The sheep hear his voice, and he calls his own sheep by name and leads them out. 4 When he has brought out all his own, he goes before them, and the sheep follow him, for they know his voice.

John 6:44 “No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him, and I will raise him up at the last day.

1Pet. 2:9 ¶ But you are a chosen people, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people belonging to God, that you may declare the praises of him who called you out of darkness into his wonderful light.

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

Titus 3:5 he saved us, not because of works done by us in righteousness, but according to his own mercy, by the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit,

Ezek. 36:26 And I will give you a new heart, and a new spirit I will put within you. And I will remove the heart of stone from your flesh and give you a heart of flesh.

John 3:3 Jesus answered him, “Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born again he cannot see the kingdom of God.”

1Pet. 1:3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! According to his great mercy, he has caused us to be born again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, 2Cor. 4:6 For God, who said, “Let light shine out of darkness,” has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Foreknowledge

Predestination

Eph. 2:8 For by grace you have been saved through faith. And this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God, 9 not a result of works, so that no one may boast.

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

Jn. 1:11 He came to his own, and his own people did not receive him. 12 But to all who did receive him, who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God, 13 who were born, not of blood nor of the will of the flesh nor of the will of man, but of God.

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Heb. 11:24 By faith Moses, when he was grown up, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, 25 choosing rather to be mistreated with the people of God than to enjoy the fleeting pleasures of sin. 26 He considered the reproach of Christ greater wealth than the treasures of Egypt, for he was looking to the reward.

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

Acts 2:37 Now when they heard this they were cut to the heart, and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, “Brothers, what shall we do?” 38 And Peter said to them, “Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins, and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit.

Rom. 2:4 Or do you presume on the riches of his kindness and forbearance and patience, not knowing that God’s kindness is meant to lead you to repentance?

1John 1:9 If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

James 5:16 Therefore, confess your sins to one another and pray for one another, that you may be healed. The prayer of a righteous person has great power as it is working.

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

Rom. 4:1 What then shall we say was gained by Abraham, our forefather according to the flesh? 2 For if Abraham was justified by works, he has something to boast about, but not before God.

JUSTIFICATION

3 For what does the Scripture say? “Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him as righteousness.” 4 Now to the one who works, his wages are not counted as a gift but as his due. 5 And to the one who does not work but believes in him who justifies the ungodly, his faith is counted as righteousness,

Col. 2:13 And you, who were dead in your trespasses and the uncircumcision of your flesh, God made alive together with him, having forgiven us all our trespasses, 14 by canceling the record of debt that stood against us with its legal demands. This he set aside, nailing it to the cross.

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

John 1:12 But to all who did receive him, who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God,

Rom. 8:15 For you did not receive the spirit of slavery to fall back into fear, but you have received the Spirit of adoption as sons, by whom we cry, “Abba! Father!”
16 The Spirit himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God,

JUSTIFICATION

ADOPTION

Matt. 7:9 Or which one of you, if his son asks him for bread, will give him a stone? 10 Or if he asks for a fish, will give him a serpent? 11 If you then, who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father who is in heaven give good things to those who ask him!

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

1 Cor. 6:11 And such were some of you.
But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of our God.

JUSTIFICATION

ADOPTION

SANCTIFICATION

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

1 Cor. 6:11 And such were some of you. But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of our God.

1Cor. 1:2 To the church of God that is in Corinth, to those sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints together with all those who in every place call upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, both their Lord and ours:

JUSTIFICATION

ADOPTION

SANCTIFICATION

Definitive

Foreknowledge

Predestination

Heb. 10:14 because by one sacrifice he has made perfect forever those who are being made holy.

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

Rom. 8:13 For if you live according to the flesh you will die, but if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, you will live.

JUSTIFICATION

ADOPTION

REGENERATION

Phil. 2:12 Therefore, my beloved, as you have always obeyed, so now, not only as in my presence but much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling, 13 for it is God who works in you, both to will and to work for his good pleasure.

SANCTIFICATION

Definitive

Progressive

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

Foreknowledge

Predestination

Religious/Moralist/Catholic View

Jesus/Grace + Good Works = Salvation

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

Christian View

Jesus/Grace + ?

JUSTIFICATION

ADOPTION

SANCTIFICATION

Definitive

Progressive

Foreknowledge

Predestination

Religious/Moralist/Catholic View

Jesus/Grace + Good Works = Salvation

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

Christian View

Jesus/Grace = Salvation... + ?

JUSTIFICATION

ADOPTION

SANCTIFICATION

Definitive

Progressive

Foreknowledge

Predestination

Religious/Moralist/Catholic View

Jesus/Grace + Good Works = Salvation

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

Christian View

Jesus/Grace = Salvation... + GW

JUSTIFICATION

ADOPTION

SANCTIFICATION

Definitive

Progressive

Foreknowledge

Predestination

Religious/Moralist/Catholic View

Jesus/Grace + Good Works = Salvation

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

Christian View

Jesus/Grace = Salvation... + GW

JUSTIFICATION

ADOPTION

SANCTIFICATION

Definitive

Progressive

Indicative (Grace)

ALWAYS PRECEDES

Imperative (Obedience)

Foreknowledge

Predestination

1Th. 5:9 For God has not destined us for wrath, but to obtain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, 10 who died for us so that whether we are awake or asleep we might live with him.

Jude 24 Now to him who is able to keep you from stumbling and to present you blameless before the presence of his glory with great joy,

Rev. 21:1 Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth...2 And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. 3 ...“Behold, the dwelling place of God is with man. He will dwell with them, and they will be his people, and God himself will be with them as their God. 4 He will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more, neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain anymore, for the former things have passed away.”

Glorification

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

John 17:21 ...that they may all be one, just as you, Father, are in me, and I in you, that they also may be in us, so that the world may believe that you have sent me. 22 The glory that you have given me I have given to them, that they may be one even as we are one, 23 I in them and you in me... 26 I made known to them your name, that the love with which you have loved me may be in them, and I in them."

UNION
with Christ

JUSTIFICATION

ADOPTION

SANCTIFICATION

Immediate

Progressive

Glorification

...union with Christ means that you are in Christ and Christ is in you.

The greatest treasure of the gospel, greater than any other benefit the gospel brings, is the gift of God himself.

UNION with Christ

Communion between God and man is the end to which both creation and redemption are the means; it is the goal to which both theology and preaching must ever point; it is the essence of true religion; it is, indeed, the definition of Christianity.

Imagine a little boy wearing his father's dress shirt. He is already fully clothed, you could say, but he's still just a little boy. He'll have to grow up into this new covering until it fits him. In the same way, we are already completely clothed in Christ and his righteousness, but life in Christ is one of growing up into this new reality until it fits us. You are not striving to attain it. You are striving to lay hold of what is already yours. You are growing up into it.

"Let us therefore labor more to feel Christ living in us." 3 John Owen added, "Labor, therefore, to fill your hearts with the cross of Christ." And Jonathan Edwards exhorted, "We should labour to be continually growing in divine love."

UNION with Christ

Every morning I wake up and find my heart has reverted to its default position: I need to prove myself today, handle things, make a name for myself. Part of “preparing my mind for action” is choosing instead to reorient myself toward God and his mercies, which are new every morning; to remember God relates to me by his grace, not by my performance. That is, I must start each day with my union with Christ. I must breathe in faith—I am in Christ and Christ is in me. God is good, God is in charge, and God loves me. Above all, what will make this day a good day will be abiding in Christ today, listening to his voice, keeping in step with his Spirit, walking in faith and repentance. But I can’t assume the posture of abiding unless I am sober minded (1 Thess. 5: 6), knowing that I must labor to be brought near and that this labor begins again each day.

Foreknowledge

Predestination

CALLING

Universal

Effectual

REGENERATION

CONVERSION

Faith

Repentance

UNION with Christ

JUSTIFICATION

ADOPTION

SANCTIFICATION

Immediate

Progressive

Glorification